

April 2, 2020

To Our Valued Customer,

As the Coronavirus (COVID-19) continues to have a substantial impact within our communities, we at Tyson Foods want to ensure you that we are taking all necessary steps to maintain the safety and health of our customers, consumers and employees as we continue operations. Additionally, as a critical infrastructure company designated by the Department of Homeland Security, we want to assure you the food supply is safe and secure.

To help prevent the spread of COVID-19, we are only allowing visitors who are deemed essential by Tyson leadership into any of our facilities. This means that we cannot allow auditors into our facilities to conduct their audits for the continued safety of our Team Members. Currently, all audits through April have been suspended by Tyson Foods. Those audits that fall into that timeframe will be rescheduled as soon as safely possible. Any changes to that timeline will be relayed to our customers, as appropriate.

We remain committed to you and to our ability to deliver on our Customer Promise. We want to reiterate that the food supply is safe and that we continue to meet all regulatory, customer and GFSI certification requirements. Our Enterprise Leadership Team continues to monitor the global and national situation surrounding COVID-19. As new information becomes available, we will address our business and policies with the utmost care.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads 'Suzanne Finstad'.

Suzanne Finstad
VP FSQA Poultry

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads 'Bob Reinhart'.

Bob Reinhart
VP FSQA Prepared Foods

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads 'Jennifer Williams'.

Jennifer Williams
VP FSQA Fresh Meats

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads 'Joe Harmon'.

Joe Harmon
VP Global FSQA